The Curci House

The Curci House, built in 1925, is the only remaining example of Italian Renaissance architecture in Hallandale Beach and a significant Broward County structure. Occupied by the Curci family into the 1960's, it was affectionately called the "Villa Providence" by the family. The project site has been designated as a Historic Site by the City of Hallandale Beach City Commission.

The Project

The project is being undertaken for the City of Hallandale Beach and will encompass a complete restoration of the house to its original grandeur, including structural stabilization, and faithful restoration of both exterior and interior details.

The General Contractor

Restoration will be conducted by The Durable Restoration Company from its Merritt Island office. Durable Restoration is an award winning historic restoration contractor headquartered in Columbus, Ohio with additional offices in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and New Orleans.

The Architect

Heritage Architectural Associates, with offices in Miami Beach and Wheeling, West Virginia, is a full service architectural firm specializing in architectural restoration, additions to historic structures, new design within historic contexts, downtown revitalization, and preservation planning.
